James Campbell was born in Inverness. During the war he flew on thirty-eight bombing operations with No.158 Halifax Squadron based at Lisset, Yorkshire. After the war he returned to journalism, turning down the chance of continuing in the RAF on a short service commission. For the last twenty-two years he has been the Lobby Correspondent of a daily newspaper. In 1962 he was the only journalist to anticipate Selwyn Lloyd’s ‘lollipop’ Budget, and Granada TV’s ‘What the Papers Say’ acclaimed his story as ‘the scoop of the year’.

Ralph Barker, Survival in the Sky
Price: 60p
Ralph Barker was born in 1917 and educated at Hounslow College. He joined the editorial staff of Sporting Life in 1934, but later went into banking. Meanwhile he had begun writing and several of his sketches and scenes were produced in West End Revue. In 1940 he joined the RAF as a wireless operator and air-gunner, served in the Middle East and West Africa as well as the UK, and completed two thousand flying hours before demobilization in 1946. He returned to banking for a year and then went into civil aviation as a radio operator. At the end of 1948, Ralph Barker rejoined the RAF and went to Germany as a public relations officer on the Berlin Airlift. After two years in Service broadcasting at BFN Hamburg, he was posted to the Air Ministry to work on official war narratives. His first book, Down in the Drink, was published in 1955, and since then he has written several other books with an aviation background including Strike Hard, Strike Sure and Against the Sea, both also published in Pan Books. He retired voluntarily from the RAF in 1961 to write full time. He is a frequent contributor of feature stories to the Sunday Express.
